

A College Preparatory Christian Boarding High School

September 17, 2022

Alumni and Friends of Canyonville Academy,

As you may recall, last year, we wrote you regarding the future of Canyonville Academy. After much prayer, we informed you of our difficult decision to relocate the school because the lack of international students gaining access to student visas during the Covid pandemic, the fear parents expressed about sending their student to us because of Portland's negative international publicity, and the necessity of finding a location where we can rely on a strong number of American students to provide the financial base for the school. As a result, we began to sell the school's physical property in Canyonville for the purposes of relocation and reorganization.

As you can imagine, selling the main school property has been difficult as only a few organizations have use of such a facility. As of this week, the school's remaining property has now been sold. Most of the property has been purchased by a notable non-profit organization that works with military veterans facing mobility and trauma-related challenges. We believe the organization will make great use of the facility and will be a tremendous addition to the Canyonville community.

With the sale of school properties, we have been able to pay off outstanding debt and bills. The remaining funds will be used to cover the school's on-going expenses and for the relocation of the school. It is our hope to launch our first new location by 2024. In fact, we believe we may be able to launch more than one new location in the future. In those locations, the legacy and history of Canyonville Academy will be honored and its story told to future generations of students and parents. We, as you, continue to believe in the mission of the school and seek to continue that mission. We will continue to keep you informed going forward.

We have a limited number of yearbooks, trophies and other memorabilia you may be interested in acquiring. If you wish to receive a list of what is available, please email us at: info@canyonville.net.

Once again, thank you for your understanding and patience as we continue to move forward.

In Christ,

The Canyonville Academy Board
